Purpose/About the Course

The purpose of this course is to provide a working knowledge of conservation easements as a land-use control. It provides guidance on drafting conservation easement agreements to achieve landowner goals for their property. Land Trusts discuss their philosophy of land use protection and what they can offer landowners. This course offers a comprehensive overview of legal, appraisal, base line information, tax incentives, and other inputs needed for a successful conservation easement agreement.

Objectives

The objective is to provide guidance for attendees in reaching a sustainable agreement for protecting forest land. A framework is offered for analyzing protection goals for reaching a successful agreement in the context of legal constraints and tax incentives.

You will learn

- How easements affect land use
- The advantages/disadvantages of easements
- Which agencies and organizations can accept easements
- Tax aspects of easements
- How to plan for an easement

Who Will Benefit?

Landowners with an interest in protecting their forest property from development or other exploitation should attend. Foresters, accountants, attorneys, appraisers, and wildlife resource managers who work with landowners will benefit.

Instructors

Dr. Harry Haney, Jr.

Continuing Education Instructor

University of Georgia, Warnell School of Forestry

Dr. Harry L. Haney, Jr. earned his Ph.D. in Forestry Economics from Yale University. He is the Garland Gray Emeritus Professor of Forestry, Virginia Tech and a consulting forester. He has over 40 years of experience in managing timberland with special interest in income, estate and gift tax issues impacting management decisions. He has written landowner guides on federal income tax, estate planning, economics, and conservation easements. He manages his own tree farm with his wife, Jackie and his daughter, J. Lee, Esq. He is currently an adjunct professor at both UGA and Clemson.

Drew Ruttinger

ACUB Conservation Planner

Georgia -Alabama Land Trust, Savannah, GA

Drew Ruttinger is the Conservation Planner at the Georgia-Alabama Land Trust Savannah office. He graduated with his Bachelor of Science in Forest Resources with a major in Wildlife in Fisheries from the University of Georgia and his Master of Science in Forest Resources degree majoring in wildlife biology and management. His master's research focused on Eastern Wild Turkey habitat selection in the longleaf pine ecosystem of Southwestern Georgia. Drew grew up in Valdosta, GA and has worked with multiple species of flora and fauna native to the endangered longleaf pine-wiregrass ecosystem of the Southeastern U.S. throughout his career.

Mark McClure

Georgia Forestry Commission

Brian Bojo, Esq.

McRae, Smith, Peek, Harman & Monroe, LLP, Rome, GA

Brian is a BV rated attorney and enjoys a transactional practice that touches many issues that are encountered by small business owners and investors in Rome and northwest Georgia. He has advised individual and corporate clients on issues related to corporate governance, LLC formation and operation, nonprofit formation and operation, securities issuances, partnership issues, and the tax implications of various transactions. He also assists with the transition of businesses and business interests, such as through mergers with other businesses, acquisitions or purchases of businesses, and buy/sell agreements between shareholders. A favorite aspect of his practice is to advise individuals and business owners on how to best steward what they own by preparing wills, engaging in trust and estate planning, and advising on estate, gift, and generation skipping transfer tax issues. Brian also has substantial experience in the realm of the application of conservation easements to real property. He has advised landowners, property managers, partnership managers, and individual investors, and has worked alongside numerous accounting firms, broker-dealers, land conservancy organizations, and qualified appraisers in the structure of partnerships formed for the purpose of exploring the possibilities of land conservation. In recent years Brian has been involved in the conservation of thousands of acres of real property throughout the southeast.

Virginia B. Harmon, Esq.

McRae, Smith, Peek, Harman & Monroe, LLP, Rome, GA

Virginia came to MSP in 1991, and became a partner in 1993. Virginia was previously associated with the firm of Hine and Carroll in Rome. She also served as Assistant District Attorney for the Lookout Mountain Judicial Circuit in LaFayette, Georgia from 1982-1983. Virginia was the first attorney at McRae, Smith, Peek, Harman & Monroe, LLP ("MSP") to deal with conservation easements, when she began assisting clients with them over twenty years ago. Virginia's extensive litigation experience in representing the Georgia Department of Transportation and Lawyers Title has given her advanced exposure to various types of appraisals, including appraisals residential properties, commercial properties, raw land and application of the concept of highest and best use to the appraisal process. In the conservation easement context, this experience is vital in reviewing and evaluating appraisals that are received which purport to define a contribution amount for landowners. Since the Internal Revenue Service has placed appraisals and appraisal methods within the conservation easement context under close scrutiny in recent years, this skillset is invaluable for MSP and its clients. After attending LaGrange College, she graduated summa cum laude from Georgia State University, where she was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, then from the University of Georgia School of Law with honors. She is admitted to practice before the Court of Appeals and Supreme Court of the State of Georgia, the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Georgia, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 11th Circuit and the United States Tax Court.
